

Wringing the Most out of our Resources

We know it's a challenging time to be in charge of Utah's cities and towns. Governing is a lot more fun when revenues are stable or, better yet, going up. Our agenda includes workshops that will focus on programs and policies that will save money and improve financial stability. And of course we're also offering classes that address the "meat and potato" issues of local government. We're glad you are here.

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to St. George for the League's annual Midyear Convention. This is a great time to reconnect with friends and colleagues who are working to improve cities and towns all over our state. We hope you find your time spent here to be worthwhile.

The primary purpose of this annual event has always been to get together to review the results of the recently completed Utah legislative session and determine what it means for the way we manage our respective communities.

The 2009 session was a good one for the League considering the tough times we're in, and we'll take a closer look at a number of new laws that will require our attention in the coming months. As usual we're also offering a variety of workshops on a number of topics that we think are relevant to most communities.

It's a very challenging time to be part of local government in Utah. We hope this conference invigorates you and helps you take on the challenges and opportunities that are ahead.

Sincerely,

Jill Remington Love,

Council Member, Salt Lake City
President, Utah League of Cities and Towns

Thursday Evening

Thursday evening we'll move our event to downtown St. George where we'll be hosting a dinner and entertainment at the Town Square.

Jason Hewlett

Utah's own Jason Hewlett has come a long way since he started his performing career in 3rd grade, impersonating his favorite TV character Pee Wee Herman. During the intervening years he's brought to the stage a famous cast of characters including Jim Carrey, Michael Jackson, Elton John, Louie Armstrong, Nat King Cole, Led Zeppelin, The Temptations, Cat Stevens, Smokey Robinson, and Alvin & The Chipmunks. Jason has performed all over the country, bringing audiences to tears and bent over in laughter with his flawless impersonations. We're excited to have Jason join us on St. George's Town Square on Thursday evening.

Our thanks to Mayor Dan McArthur, the St. George City Council and city employees Gary Esplin, Marc Mortensen, Gary Sanders and Kent Perkins, for their assistance with this event.

Accountability in Leadership from the Top Down:
Closing the Accountability Gap

Linda Galindo, President, Versera Performance Consulting
ENTRADA B AND C

Affixing blame, abdicating personal responsibility and operating with cloudy performance expectations remains the modus operandi of many organizations. What is needed is a new way to teach and model accountability. In this session Ms. Galindo will lead you to understand what makes people want to become more responsible and accountable in the workplace without the need for punitive measures.

David Church, General Counsel, ULCT
ENTRADA B AND C

In a presentation that will last only slightly longer than it takes to read the title of it, David Church will dispense some topical tidbits that might come in handy in your official capacity as a local official. David has been working with Utah's local officials for a long time and during that time he's pretty much heard it all. He's even rendered advice on much of what he's heard and we've been told that some of his advice has even stood up in a court of law. In this session we think he'll address a number of the meatier issues that pop up in city and town halls all over Utah. But we can't be sure because he'll never tell us in advance what he's going to say.

AUDITORIUM

It is out of sight and out of mind, but America's aging water system is in dire need of an overhaul. "Liquid Assets: The Story of Our Water Infrastructure," tells of America's distressed essential infrastructure systems: drinking water, wastewater, and storm water. These complex and aging systems—some in the ground for more than 150 years—are critical components for basic sanitation, health, public safety, economic development, and a Constant change, as paradoxical as that sounds, is now a reality. Globalization, transparency, and technology are major drivers of this new dynamic. Environmental pressures are changing marketplaces rapidly. The need to develop flexible, robust corporate eco-strategies is now an imperative. These forces are shaking the foundations of nearly every industry, and governments at all levels are being held accountable as well. Business and government leaders are feeling pressure from all sides to explain, and improve, their environmental performance and those that respond quickly and effectively with new strategies will have the advantage in the future.

Invest in Efficiency: A Powerful Return

Chris Helmers, Rocky Mountain Power

Bryan Haney, Questar Thermwise

SUNBROOK A & B

Rocky Mountain Power and Questar have a number of programs to help reduce energy consumption and cost in nearly every city facility. We can provide the technical expertise and cash incentives in partnership with you to make your project a success. We can help you save time and money in reaching your energy efficiency goals. Join us to find out how to reduce your operating cost and stretch your budgets in these tight economic times.

How to Prepare a Water System Budget

Scott Ellis, Sandy City Public Utilities

SUNBROOK C

In this workshop we'll look at the entire water system budgeting process, including the mission statements, goal setting, master plans, and advisory boards. We'll also review the role of an advisory board and figure out the real meaning of a "balanced budget."

Managing Through a Recession

Panel Discussion: Moderator, Scott Darrington, South Ogden City, joined by a panel of city managers and elected officials.

ENTRADA B & C

In uncertain economic times like these there seems to be no shortage of hard decisions for local officials to consider. While our current situation is somewhat unprecedented in many ways, we've been through hard times before, and we'll go through them again. We'll ask a panel of local government veterans to provide some perspective on our times and explain some of the tough decisions they face in their own communities.

Please turn cell phones and audible pagers off during all workshops, sessions, luncheons, etc.

2:30 pm – 4:40 pm Capturing the Sun and Conserving the Water (mobile tour)
Rene' Fleming, Conservation Coordinator, City of St. George
AUDITORIUM

St. George has a lot of sun and not much water and they're doing the most with what they have and what they don't. In this workshop Rene' Fleming will provide information on the development and marketing of the St. George solar "farm" (the only one in the state) and other energy-related programs. She'll also talk about some of the water conservation resources provided by the Utah Water Conservation Forum that can help cut costs and water use in our communities. This extended session also includes a tour of the solar farm and adjacent regional waste water treatment plant. (There is an additional $10 transportation fee for this session. If you have not preregistered for the tour, please check availability at the registration desk.)

CONCURRENT SESSIONS

3:40 pm – 4:40 pm Your Energy Future
Carol Hunter, Rocky Mountain Power
SUNBROOK A & B

Energy has joined the economy, education and health care as a central issue for the current administration. How will changing energy policy impact local government? How can local government leverage the current interest in energy?

Economic Development Opportunities in the Emerging Green Economy

Gary Harter, Governor's Office of Economic Development
Bill Pratt, Southern Utah USTAR Outreach Director
ENTRADA B & C

When it comes to energy, Utah is a powerhouse. And with the nation's on-going focus on renewable energy, Utah is poised to be a major player in the industry. This workshop will discuss efforts currently being utilized to grow the renewable energy industry from research, to workforce, to manufacturing, to legislation, to incentives, to opportunities available to local government through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act

Utah's New Impact Fee Law: How to Comply

Craig Call, Utah Land Use Institute
Jodi Hoffman, Land Use Analyst, Utah League of Cities and Towns
AUDITORIUM

The rules are changing - both of the last two legislatures imposed new requirements on impact fees. According to one state official, no city is yet complying with last year's changes. Learn the latest requirements, get a checklist you can use to verify compliance, and review the pitfalls of loopholes in your impact fee system.

3:40 pm – 4:40 pm Financial Health of Your Community:
The Indicators to Follow
Neil Abercrombie and Doug Macdonald

Agenda, Thursday, April 16, continued

ULCT Economic Brain Trust
SUNBROOK C

The financial condition or health of a community is important to ensure the local government can continue to deliver high quality services. Assessing this financial health requires an analysis of a number of factors, for example, demographic trends, revenue trends, expenditures, or debt structure all impact the financial picture of a city. This workshop will help you identify which indicators to follow and provide you with the tools to analyze these factors. Keeping your finger on the financial pulse of your community is especially important during these challenging economic times.

Agenda, Friday, April 17, continued

Alan Westenskow, Vice President, Zions Bank
SUNBROOK A & B

Congress has recently passed and President Obama has signed legislation designed to stimulate the economy. Within this legislation are a number of provisions that could assist Utah's Cities and Towns in the issuance of bonds. Blake Wade and Alan Westenskow will discuss how these new provisions can be implemented to reduce overall borrowing costs and assist with market access.

How to Turn a Riot into Dialogue
Craig Call, Executive Director, Utah Land Use Institute
ENTRADA B & C

One of the most commonly cited frustrations of local leaders is the difficulty of handling clamor in a public meeting. We will discuss how public furor is generated, diffused, and channeled toward productive results. Practical tips and suggestions for best practices will be presented.

Culture: How to Change Your Organization from Top to Bottom
Doug Folsom, Risk Manager, Utah Local Governments Trust
SUNBROOK C

The overriding or underlying culture of your organization determines its ultimate success or failure. This workshop reviews the psychological and societal reasons we have our culture. The workshop explores why some organizations fail no matter how many programs they put in place or how much money they spend. Safety culture is used as an example.

GENERAL SESSION

10:20 am – 11:00 am Andrew Harding, President and CEO, Utah Kennecott Copper
GARDEN ROOM

Mr. Harding is now running one of the world's most historic and largest copper mines, Kennecott Utah Copper's Bingham Canyon Mine. Across the 17-mile operation exists cutting edge technology, environmental remediation and innovative energy generation projects. The world is facing ever increasing energy demands and decreasing resources, and Rio Tinto continues to work toward solutions that will benefit future generations. It does this through its commitment to sustainable development where decisions are put through the filter of the economic prosperity, social well-being and environmental stewardship. What can government learn from a changing mining industry? More than you might think. Join this discussion with Andrew Harding and find out.

GENERAL SESSION

11:00 am – 12:00 noon Michael Broome
GARDEN ROOM

Achieving balance in life is the ultimate barometer of success. In this hectic age it's important to focus on your own talents and have faith not only in our system, but in our ability to make the system work for us. Motivation, people management, family life, self-esteem and goal-setting strategies are critical if we are to succeed in this complicated and often confusing world.

Liquid Assets

the story of our water infrastructure

It is out of sight and out of mind, but America's aging water system is in dire need of an overhaul. "Liquid Assets: The Story of Our Water Infrastructure," tells of America's distressed essential infrastructure systems: drinking water, wastewater, and storm water. These complex and aging systems—some in the ground for more than 150 years—are critical components for basic sanitation, health, public safety, economic development, and a host of other necessities of life. We'll be showing the 15-minute abbreviated version of the documentary in the Auditorium (just off the main lobby, near the museum entrance) on Thursday at 7:30 am and 8:00 am. We'll show the entire documentary (1:15 in length) at 7:15 am on Friday. (The 9:00 am concurrent session on Friday "Liquid Assets: The Story of Our Water Infrastructure" will be using this movie as the basis of a panel discussion on how to finance upgrades to the public water infrastructure.)
